

Large Scale Wind and Solar Decision Support Tools for Rural Municipalities – Your Input is Needed!

The Miistakis Institute, in partnership with AAMDC and Wheatland County, are in the first phase of developing municipal decision support tools related to large scale wind and solar energy development applications. We are currently gathering baseline information from rural decision makers related to these types of renewable energy developments.

The survey link can be found here and should take between 15 – 20 minutes to complete. We strongly encourage your participation as this information will inform the future development of tools to assist AAMDC members.

The survey will be open until Friday September 22nd, 2017 at noon.
