Have Your Say on Renewable Energy Projects

The University of Alberta is conducting a survey within municipalities on renewable energy projects.

The University of Alberta is surveying municipalities to gauge their level of interest and motivation for renewable energy projects. The purpose of the survey is to help identify the demand, opportunities, and barriers regarding renewable energy projects in Canadian municipalities. The results from the survey will help the U of A research team understand where there is demand for specific technologies, and will help legislators, developers, and decision-makers create smart and effective policies about renewable energy that will benefit municipalities.

The survey is estimated to take 20-30 minutes to complete and all those who fill out the survey are eligible to win one of two gift cards valued at $350.00.
