Lower Athabasca Regional Plan Review Now Underway

The 10-year review of the LARP will evaluate the effectiveness of the plan

The Alberta Land Stewardship Act requires a 10-year review for each regional plan for ongoing relevancy and effectiveness. The Land-Use Secretariat, on behalf of the Government of Alberta, launched the 10-year review of the Lower Athabasca Regional Plan \(LARP\) on August 26, 2022.

A 10-year review does not amend, repeal, or replace the regional plan. The Lower Athabasca Regional Plan remains in effect. It continues to be implemented and provide strategic direction for the region. The 10-year review will result in a report from the Land Use Secretariat to the Minister on the ongoing relevancy and effectiveness of the regional plan.

To gather information on the effectiveness of the LARP, the Government of Alberta has launched a public survey. Additionally, two 10-year review documents are available to provide more information: the background and overview report and the trends and growth outlook report.
